VC3 Acquires Georgia-based Excelsio Communications

Columbia, SC – June 28, 2007 – VC3, a computer and Internet technology services provider, has acquired Excelsio Communications, a premier municipal broadband consulting group based in Alpharetta, GA. David Dunn, CEO and Chairman of VC3, has been appointed president of Excelsio. Excelsio's founder, Karl Edwards, retains his responsibilities as COO of Excelsio and now leads VC3's Wireless Broadband Business Unit. Excelsio Communications is a wholly owned subsidiary of VC3, and will continue to provide its existing portfolio of services under the Excelsio Communications brand name and through the current marketing channels.

About Excelsio Communications

Excelsio Communications was founded in January 2003 and is located in Alpharetta, GA. Excelsio provides broadband telecommunications business planning, RFP development and management, financial modeling services and wireless network design and implementation services for municipalities and service providers. Clients include Gainesville, FL; Alpharetta, GA; Decatur, GA; Marietta, GA; Milledgeville, GA; Rome, GA; Peoria, IL, Chamber of Commerce; Grand Rapids, MI; Racine County, WI; Rock County, WI; Cheyenne, WY; HP, Time Warner Cable and other municipalities and service providers.

Excelsio's core expertise is in providing business planning services to municipalities and service providers as well as planning and designing municipal wireless networks. Excelsio is a recognized industry leader in issues related to municipal broadband networks and has distinguished itself based on the level of technical and financial due diligence that it applies to its projects. More information about Excelsio Communications is available at www.excelsiocomm.com.

"We are very excited about the growth opportunities in the wireless and municipal broadband market and Excelsio has been a market leader in providing consulting services to those markets," said David Dunn. "Excelsio's wireless broadband consulting expertise combined with VC3's wireless implementation experience, large municipal government customer base and extensive technical staff will provide great value to our customers."

"The merger with VC3 allows Excelsio to expand its offering of services to municipalities and service providers," said Karl Edwards. "VC3 already has an excellent track record in providing wired and wireless network services to mid-market clients. Excelsio and VC3 are now able to offer a combined portfolio of consulting and integration services that is unparalleled in the market."
